DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-3 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Japanese reference 11-206100.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claim 4 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Japanese reference 11-206100 in view of Newman et al. Japanese reference '100 discloses a linear motor drive having a fixed element 1, a movable element 63, both with parallel rows of magnets arrayed on both sides of a reference plane with a steel plate parallel to the reference plane and having a triangular shape as shown in figure 6 and as described in paragraph 0008. While no guide mechanism is shown, one is required for the device to operate properly by keeping the movable member from striking the fixed member. The Japanese reference does not disclose electromagnets mounted to the fixed element and permanent magnets mounted to the movable element. Newman et al. teaches in column 2 lines 25-35 that both fixed and movable permanent magnets are known in the art and that each design has its advantages and disadvantages. Since Japanese reference '100 and Newman et al. are both from the same field of endeavor, it would have been obvious at the time the invention was made for one of ordinary skill in the art to have utilized permanent magnets on the movable part in order to avoid the problem of providing electrical current to the moving part.

Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Japanese reference 11-206100 in view of Bader 5,763,965 A. Japanese reference discloses the linear motor drive but does not disclose a guide mechanism comprising a pair of V shaped grooves having planar symmetry with respect to the reference plane. Bader discloses V shaped guide grooves as shown in figure 1a for use in a precision table. Since Bader and Japanese reference '100 are both from the same field of endeavor, it would have been obvious at the time the invention was made for one of ordinary skill in the art to have utilized V shaped grooves for precision guides in the device of Japanese reference '100 as no guide mechanism was disclosed in that reference.
